Charlotte, NC – The Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) Teaching and Club Professionals (T&CP) membership announced today the launch of an annual recognition of the LPGA Teaching and Club Professionals' Top 50 LPGA Teachers, presented in partnership with Women's Golf Journal. This new initiative identified and recognized the best LPGA instructors from more than 1,700 LPGA certified professionals worldwide.

"The LPGA is excited to partner with Women's Golf Journal on this annual recognition," said LPGA Chief Teaching Officer, Nancy Henderson. "More than 70 percent of our members teach the game of golf for a living and they are dedicated to the advancement of golf through teaching golfers of all ages and abilities to enjoy the game of golf."

Local Professional, Julie Cole, of Dana Rader Golf School was recognized as one of the LPGA Top 50 Best Teachers.

Julie has been an active member of the LPGA Teaching and Club Professionals since 1991 and has been an award-winning instructor since then. Julie is employed as the Managing Partner and Teaching Professional at Dana Rader Golf School.

"I am honored to be part of this elite group of golf professionals and thank the LPGA and Women's Golf Journal for creating this award," said Julie Cole.

Women's Golf Journal is an American national magazine dedicated to celebrating the lifestyle of golfing women everywhere.

"The depth of teaching expertise in the LPGA is astounding," said Women's Golf Journal Publisher Matthew Squire. "We're honored to celebrate the teaching expertise of these coaches in Women's Golf Journal, and are delighted that these incredible women are finally beginning to receive the recognition and the credit they so richly deserve."
